The holistic development of students and employability in contemporary education

This seminar explores the role of current education in fostering the holistic development of students, including aspects related to their future employment prospects.

The seminar focuses on:

- Artificial intelligence, AI.
- Discussion on the present condition of higher education and its future trajectory, with a specific emphasis on the impact, function, and importance of training institutions within this dynamic environment.

- How education plays a crucial role in developing employable skills and nurturing students' personalities.
- Employment Opportunities and Challenges in Current Education.
- The discussion on a complex situation that examines the potential opportunities and obstacles related to employment.
- Considering the geographical and economic context of Bihar and the rising population, what could be the role of education and skills development in providing young people with new possibilities?
- As of now, there is a diminishing level of morality, emphasising the importance of enhancing the moral development of children.
- Gender stereotypes and gender discrimination
- Understanding the needs and gaps in current education programming within higher education institutions requires a comprehensive exploration of learners' awareness of sexual education.
- The e-education environment and concerns regarding the impact on students' social and moral values.
- The effects of drug addiction in youth, the possibilities of diagnosing its problems, and the prevalence of illiteracy all contribute to a complex situation.
- In the contemporary world, it is crucial to ensure the conservation and advancement of social and constitutional values.
- Empowering marginalised women, Dalits, and tribal people through education is essential for fostering inclusive societies.
- Understanding the Contemporary Challenges and Issues of Women's Education.
- Ensuring women have the opportunity to receive an education is crucial for gender equality.
- Exploring the contemporary factors that shape the social landscape for women.
- The right of women to possess, use, and dispose of property.

Padmshri Prof H.C. Verma,

Retired Professor Indian Institute of Technology, IIT, Kanpur

It has long been felt that the present education system in our country lacks the basic elements of practical knowledge, ethical and virtuous value system. This kind of educational system is neither of much use in the life of a common villager nor does it help making him/her self-sustained or self-dependent. Inspired by such rational thoughts. To overcome this bottleneck by setting up a system that would go beyond the narrow bookish education and link the education to the everyday life of students. These concepts led to the establishment of "Shiksha Sopan", literally meaning 'Education to be used as a ladder' in the year 2001.

Shiksha Sopan is a registered non-governmental organization (NGO) run by Indian Institute of Technology, IIT, Kanpur Faculty, Students, Members, Employees and local Young Enthusiastic people for the upliftment of underdeveloped sections of the society through meaningful education.
